PARTS, Feb. 8.—It is reported here that a well-known tradesman, a leweler, has presented to the Countess de Castellane a bill for 5,000,000 francs, or $1,200,000, which he declares represents the sum due for jewels which the Count de Castellane ordered and presented to a certain woman of one of the most aristocratic families of Franca.

The report adds that the Countess will not contribute a single sou toward the liquidation of any such notorious debts. It is said, though, she may pay her husband's legitimate debts after all the formalities of the divorce are completed.
